How did the Fund perform for the past six months and what affected its performance?

The Fund's Class A shares outperformed the benchmark composed of 25% Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Total Return Value Index USD and 75% MSCI World Net Total Return USD Index (the "Blended Index") during the 6-month period ended March 31, 2025.

During the period, markets experienced volatility around as U.S. elections, a change of presidential administration, and new tariff tensions ultimately led to a downturn at period end. The U.S. presidential election in early November 2024 sent markets up as investors rallied behind a business-friendly administration. As the Trump administration took office, a hardline approach to global trade driven by tariff implementation dampened markets pushing global equity prices down. U.S. Treasury yields rose as investors found safety in bonds amid turbulent equity markets.

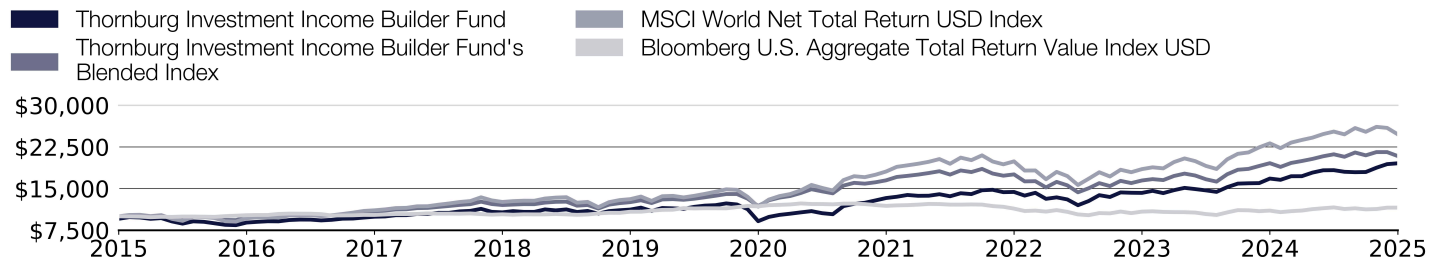

Despite the decline in equity prices at period end, the Fund's overweight positioning to equities, which outperformed bonds during the period, contributed to performance relative to the Blended Index. Security selection in communication services and the U.S. and Euro Zone were the largest contributors to the Fund's relative performance. Positioning in South Korea, security selection in materials and the Fund's cash and currency forward allocations detracted from relative performance.

As global interest rates decreased, the Fund's shorter duration positioning during the period detracted from performance relative to the Blended Index.
