What were the Fund costs for the past six months?

(based on a hypothetical $10,000 investment)

Class Name	Costs of a $10,000 investment	Costs paid as a percentage of a $10,000 investment
Class C	$113.00	2.33%

How did the Fund perform for the past six months and what affected its performance?

The Fund's Class C shares underperformed the MSCI Emerging Markets Net Total Return USD Index (the "Index") during the 6-month period ended March 31, 2025.

Overall, global markets were down at the end of the period as tariffs administered by the U.S. elevated developed and emerging markets' fears of slowing global trade, detracting from Fund performance. The Index was down for the period as the relatively strong U.S. dollar and escalating trade tensions. The largest tariff hurdles were in place for China, along with other major U.S. trade partners, Mexico and Canada, which were also facing higher levies.

Stock selection contributed positively to Fund performance relative to the Index while overall sector allocation detracted modestly from relative performance. Stock selection in industrials and energy were the largest contributors to relative performance. Despite additive overweight allocations, stock selection in consumer discretionary and financials were the largest detractors from relative performance.

From a geographic perspective, stock selection drove relative performance while geographic allocation and currency effect detracted. The Fund's overweight allocations to, and stock selection in, South Korea and the UAE contributed while stock selection in China and an overweight allocation to Hong Kong, a zero weight in the benchmark, detracted from relative performance.

How did the Fund perform over the past 10 years?

The line graph below reflects a hypothetical $10,000 investment. The returns shown in the line graph and table assume the reinvestment of dividends and capital gains, but do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on distributions or the redemption of Fund shares. The performance information shown below represents past performance and is no guarantee of future results.
